TEACH provides educators with intensive training in de-escalation and conflict resolution to promote calmer and more productive classrooms, to decrease disciplinary referral and to improve student achievement.

TEACH aims to make Houston a model city for how teachers are trained to work with underserved students by creating model schools that set the standard for classroom management and calm classroom cultures. These model schools will be available to educators throughout the district, region, and state to visit, see the program in action with their own eyes, and be inspired to implement TEACH strategies in their own environments.
